The SECRET of TONI

A NOVEL

By MOLLY ELLIOT SEAWELL

Author of "The Château of Montplaisir," "The Victory," etc.

A STORY TO WARM THE COCKLES OF YOUR HEART

A HOST of people know Miss Molly Elliot Seawell's work, and incessantly call for "More!" They will be glad to hear that she has returned to France in her latest work, "The Secret of Toni." It is another of her "sprightly romances," and the hero is a lovable rascal who commits nearly all the sins except the unpardonable sin of dulness.

The book is profusely illustrated by GEORGE BREHM

THE WINDFALL

By CHARLES EGBERT CRADDOCK

A fascinating modern romance by the author of "The Prophet of the Great Smoky Mountains." The book has an absorbing plot, and introduces the reader to many attractive characters, both from the world of the mountaineers, whom Miss Murfree has long made famous, and from the upper world of society. An unusual novel by a deservedly popular author. $1.50.

March 23

THE DOWER WOODS

By EMMA BROOKE

Frontispiece by C. ALLAN GILBERT

A new novel by the author of "The Engrafted Rose." The Dower Woods get their name from having been included in the bride's dower of an old English family. The story relates the efforts of young Sir Elyot Ingall to save them from commercial destruction, and at the same time make good with his own life. Splendid literary qualities, as well as abounding humanity, make this novel a memorable one. $1.50.

March 23

THE FERRY OF FATE

By SAMUEL GORDON, author of "Lesser Destinies"

A story of the Jews and Government in Russia, told with remarkable truth and power by an author whose work has won him a place in the school made famous by Israel Zangwill. The plot centres in the struggle of two young Jews for their people, involving for each the supreme sacrifice of his life. $1.50.

MEREDITH NICHOLSON'S NEW NOVEL

The PORT of MISSING MEN

MEREDITH NICHOLSON told a story in The House of a Thousand Candles that took a nation by storm.

He tells a better story still in The Port of Missing Men—tells it with a joyful gusto that stirs the blood, gladdens the spirit and paints the world in happy colors.

Destined to a tremendous popularity

The eagerness of youth is in it and the delight of youthful love. Fresh through its chapters blows the bracing air of the Virginia hills.

Its mystery entices, its adventure spurs the interest to breakneck speed and the shining eyes of the heroine lure from page to page.

"DO YOU THINK?

"Do you ever find it difficult to concentrate your mind on one subject for any length of time? Do you know that you use only one-half of your brain? Does your brain originate thought or do you? Can you control what you shall think about? Have you any existance apart from your brain? Could you talk if some one had not taught you? Do you know what dreams are made of? Do you know why you believe you shall live again after death?

"We are going to recommend a book to you. We have no interest in it. We recommend it entirely in your interest. It is called 'Brain and Personality,' written in exquisite English, without a technical term in it, by a great specialist, Dr. W. Hanna Thomson, and published by Dodd, Mead & Co. If you wish to know who you are, by all means read that book and then pass it on to your friends. We read a great many books in our business. We have not found one in years that approaches this one in interest or profit. It makes the more dramatic fiction tame. Have the young people read it. You will be grateful to us for calling it to your attention. Have your newsdealer order it for you."—Everybody's Magazine.

THE DUST OF CONFLICT

A NOVEL

By HAROLD BINDLOSS

Author of "Alton of Somasco"

Cloth, 12mo, Price $1.50

Illustrated in full color by W. Herbert Dunton

HAROLD BINDLOSS is one of the best writers of adventurous romance now being published. His ALTON OF SOMASCO sold remarkably well last year, but the new story is still better. The publishers are so confident of its success that they have gone to large expense to make it a truly handsome book. The illustrations are in full color from oil paintings, and the cover is very striking.

It is a story of rapid movement; the sort that "carries the reader along." The action is chiefly in Cuba just before the Spanish War. The blowing up of the "Maine" makes a dramatic point in the plot. With a manly, vigorous hero and charming heroines, the love element gives a delightful turn to the account of strife.

NEW BOOKS FOR SERIOUS READING

Dr. Thomas R. Slicer's The Way to Happiness

By the Minister to All Souls' Church, New York. Cloth, 16*mo*, 171 pages, $1.25 net (postage 7*c*.)

Dr. Slicer was prompted to the writing of this little book by seeing how many miss happiness through assuming that it is necessarily allied with something beyond their reach. After pointing out the ways in which earth's best have followed the search, he describes with winning simplicity the way to find the joy that is laid as an obligation upon every human being. Published this day

Prof. Carl Hilty's further "Essays on Happiness" The Steps of Life

Like the first series, these essays have a restful, uplifting charm; their tone is one of tranquil reflection, expressing the thoughtful observations of "a spiritually minded man of the world." They are translated by MELVIN BRANDOW, with an introduction by FRANCIS GREENWOOD PEABODY, Professor of Christian Morals in Harvard University.

Ready this day. 264 12*mo pages*, cloth, $1.25 net (postage 10*c*.)

A. R. B. Lindsay's The Warrior Spirit in the Republic of God

Contains no cant and little theology, but a free, fearless, pungent, eloquent appeal for a strong, sane Christian life as the vital factor in business, politics, home and church.

Attractively bound, 218 12*mo pages*, gilt tops, $1.50 net (postage 12*c*.)

Emerson By George Edward Woodberry

Professor Woodberry ranks easily among the first critics of our time, and his analysis of Emerson's work and of the sources of his immense moral force and inspiring power is of overmastering interest.

English Men of Letters, American Series. Cloth, 12*mo*, 75 cents net

Miss Jane Addams's new book Newer Ideals of Peace

"Miss Addams is known internationally as having sought to realize to the full her great capacity for social sympathy. Her new book is a report, inspiring and ennobling, of the later aspects of her experience. It is its spirit, however, that makes it one book in a year."—Chicago Evening Post.

NOTES IN SEASON.

D. APPLETON & Co. will bring out early in March "The Cage," a story of the Haymarket riot in Chicago, by Charlotte Teller.

MCCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. will publish shortly a volume of essays by Professor Gayley, of the University of California, which will probably be named after the essay entitled "What is Comparative Literature?"

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have in preparation a second novel by John Reed Scott, whose first book, "The Colonel of the Red Huzzars," was one of the successes of 1906. The story will be entitled "Beatrix of Clare," and while the scene is laid in England in the reign of Richard III., it will not be a historical novel.

THE CUPPLES & LEON CO. have made arrangements with E. P. Dutton & Co. for the exclusive right to reproduce the Dutton booklets known as the Gem Series, certain copies of which have formerly been published by Cupples & Leon as the Eureka Art Series. E. P. Dutton & Co. having successfully defended their claim to the exclusive right to publish these books, they will protect these rights and the rights they have assigned to the Cupples & Leon Co. against any one who copies these books or in any way infringes their rights.

DUFFIELD & Co. will bring out on the 23d inst. a volume entitled "The Spirit of Labor," by Hutchins Hapgood, author of "The Autobiography of a Thief," the life-story of a Chicago labor leader and trade unionist, throwing much new light on the important subject of the conflict between labor and capital; also, "Success in Life," by Emil Reich, author of "Success Among Nations," which is said to be crammed full of vitally interesting suggestions on how to be successful in whatever walk of life. They have in preparation for March five new books, of which announcement is made in our advertising pages.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish on the 27th inst., in honor of the centennial of Longfellow's birth, a volume entitled "Henry Wadsworth Longfellow," containing a sketch of his life by Professor Charles Eliot Norton, together with Longfellow's chief autobiographical poems. Professor Norton's memoir consists of some forty pages, and dwells with special emphasis upon Longfellow's personality. The book contains two portraits and is issued in three different editions to suit the wide range of Longfellow's admirers. They also have in preparation an illustrated Centennial edition of Longfellow's "Hanging of the Crane," which will be issued very shortly.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just ready a book by the Rev. Dr. Thomas R. Slicer, of All Souls' Unitarian Church in New York City, entitled "The Way to Happiness," in which the author reveals himself as an optimist of the healthy and practical kind, who believes in happiness as, on the whole, the normal plan of nature; also, "Elementary English Composition," by T. F. Huntington, an attractive text-book for school use as well as a helpful and interesting guide to students outside of the schools who are trying to learn how to write. They announce for next week a story by Owen Wister, the title of which suggests rich comic possibilities, "How Doth the Simple Spelling Bee Impruv Each Shining Ower." Mr. Wister seems in a fair way to achieve recognition as an out and out humorist. Every one remembers the delicious story of Em'ly, the locoed hen, in "The Virginian;" "Lady Baltimore" was that rarity, a novel in the true comic spirit, while the new story is broad farce, with more than a tinge of good natured satire.

An exhaustive study of one of the descendants of the great republican, Lucius Junius Brutus, who was born in the year 85 B.C. He was a favorite of Julius Cæsar and accompanied him to Rome in the year 45 B.C. An ardent republican Decimus Brutus was easily won over by the liberators, among whom was his kinsman, Marcus Junius Brutus, with whom Decimus Brutus has often been confused. It was Decimus Brutus who, on March 15, after Cæsar had already made up his mind to send Antonius to dismiss the Senate, urged the dictator not to heed the dreams of a woman and the prophecies of foolish men, and who prevailing on him, led Cæsar by the hand into the curia Pompeia, where he was murdered. Decimus Brutus seems to have had no part in the actual slaying of his friend and patron. After the assassination he left Rome for Cisalpine Gaul, his province. He was eventually overcome by the combined forces of Antonius and Octavianus, and was beheaded within a year and a half after Cæsar's assassination.

By the author of "South Africa: a glance at current conditions and politics," "The new fiscal policy," etc. The essays are reprinted from periodicals of a quarter of a century to a decade ago, with one exception. The critical essays of the first volume deal with the authors, and with the artistic and scientific questions, of the time when they appeared; the political essays deal with the national questions of their period. The author's views then expressed are those he holds to-day.

Frost, Rev. W: Albert Crawford-. The philosophy of integration: an explanation of the universe and of the Christian religion; ed. by Ja. Wilson Bright. Bost., Mayhew Publishing Co., 1906, [1907.] c. '06. 5+183 p. D. cl., $1.

Author was for some years rector of the Memorial Church of the Holy Comforter, Baltimore; now recently instructor of chemistry in the Baltimore Medical College. He states that this system of thought, which was published in outline in 1896 under the title, "Old dogma in a new light," resembles, on the one hand, the idealistic philosophy of Hegel, and, on the other, the synthetic philosophy of Spencer. The two indestructible powers of the universe are force and energy—force which integrates and contracts, energy which disintegrates and destroys. The author represents force as God, the Unifier, the Integrator, and energy as the activity of the devil, the Destroyer, the Disintegrator. He traces the process of integration in the creation, the incarnation, Christ's miracles, teachings, death, resurrection and ascension, in the founding and aims of the Christian church and in man's final destiny.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

FEBRUARY 16, 1907.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE AUCTION SEASON OF 1906.

THE auction season of 1905-1906 in this country, according to all reports, surpassed all previous seasons, so far as record of them was kept, in the number of lots sold and in the total sum realized. According to Mr. Luther S. Livingston, in his latest volume of "American Book-Prices Current,"* 139,383 lots were sold at 414 sessions, in 182 catalogues, of which 14,600 have found place in the record of Mr. Livingston's volume.

Although the quality of the material offered has been generally good, that is, grist for the mill of the second-hand bookseller, extremely rare books that appeal to the collector, with a few exceptions, were conspicuous by their absence.

The highest price paid during the season for a single volume was $1500 for a copy of Poe's second book, "Al Aaraaf, Tamerlane and Minor Poems," Baltimore, 1829, at the Appleton sale at Libbie's in May. William Nelson's copy of this book, with Poe's autograph, and numerous corrections in his hand, sold in the Pierce sale, in 1903, for $1825. Uncut copies of the book, according to Mr. Livingston, had previously brought from $1100 to $1300. The next highest price for a single volume was $1300 for a third quarto of "The Merchant of Venice," London, 1637, a duplicate from the Lenox collection sold for the New York Public Library by Anderson in May. The recent increase in the value of all early editions of the separate plays of Shakespeare, the four folios, and early books by contemporaries which refer, even in the obscurest or remotest manner, to Shakespeare, is perhaps the most notable advance in prices that has taken place in recent years and one that is most likely to be permanent.

The lot for which the highest price was paid during the season was $8950 for a set of the four folios of Shakespeare, in the Henry G. Denny collection sold by Libbie's in January, 1906. This apparently low price—when it is remembered that the MacGeorge set sold privately in 1905 for £10,000—is accounted for by the fact that the Denny copy of the first folio lacked several leaves at the beginning and end, which were replaced by facsimiles, and that the third folio also had two leaves in facsimile in front and two at the back.

A set of Audubon's "Birds and Quadrupeds," both the original folio editions, and both with the accompanying text, in all fifteen volumes, folio and octavo, in the Kemble collection, was sold by Henkels in April for $4350.

Among the notable collections sold were those of William S. Appleton, Sir John Bourinot, the Hon. Samuel W. Pennypacker, Albert M. Palmer, T. S. Drowne, Charles L. Peabody, Charles A. Lighthipe, William H. Terry and Wilberforce Eames.

Several notable collections of autographs were also disposed of, and the popularity of these sales is evidence that interest in autographs among collectors is decidedly on the increase. More lots are being offered at auction and the prices of the specimens of the better class are steadily rising.

In England the book auction season has also been a notable one, at least so far as the number of surprises in the way of rare and extraordinary books and manuscripts is concerned, which may account for the fact that the estimated average price a volume fetched, according to J. H. Slater in his "Book Prices Current," for 1905-1906,† is £2 11s. 3d., against $9 the volume realized in the American auction rooms. Finely illuminated manuscripts

*LIVINGSTON, Luther S., comp. American Book-Prices Current: a record of books, manuscripts and autographs sold at auction in New York, Boston and Philadelphia, from September 1, 1905, to September 1, 1906, with the prices realized. [v. 12.] N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1906. c. 20+774 p. 8°, cl. (693 copies.)

†SLATER, J. H., comp. Book-Prices Current: a record of the prices at which books have been sold at auction, from October, 1905, to July, 1906, being the season of 1905-1906. v. 20. Lond., Elliot Stock, 1906. 10+746 p. 8°, cl.

and (unfortunately imperfect) specimens of the work of England's first printer on the one hand and Shakespeare and Shelley on the other provided the surprises. The manuscripts—many of them, as usual, Books of Hours—brought high prices, some over six hundred pounds, and the Caxtons also went well. Messrs. Hodgson, as already noted by us, had the good fortune to discover among some books sent them for disposal three imperfect Caxtons bound in one volume of contemporary binding. The volume realized £470. In the library of the late Dr. Richard Garnett were three note-books with entries in the hand-writing of Shelley, which Dodd, Mead & Co. bought for £3000, presumably for Frederic R. Halsey, the owner of the finest Shelley collection in America. In the Hodgson sale, which realized £10,852, Blake's "Songs of Innocence," 1789, sold for £107; Chaucer, 1475, (another Caxton, also imperfect,) brought one hundred guineas; the publications of the Kelmscott Press, twenty-five volumes, (including the Chaucer,) all printed on vellum, totalled £744, and the original manuscripts of two dozen of the works of William Morris brought £1239 5s. At the same sale the copy of the second edition of Spenser's "Shepheardes Calendar," 1581, was purchased for £180 by Dodd, Mead & Co. There are only two other examples of this edition in America, and one of these has the last leaf in facsimile. The copy of the original Latin edition of Drake's second voyage, Leyden, 1588, which realized £340 at the Sutherland sale, was also bought for an American collector.

The records of recent English auction sales, according to Mr. Slater, show conclusively that examples of early English printing; Americana of a certain well-defined era; old editions of the English classics, particularly plays and poems; books containing autograph inscriptions, the value of the book qua book being comparatively trifling; and manuscripts, mediæval and artistic, or modern and classic, so long as they are classic enough—all these are in such demand that the supply falls hopelessly short. These are the important books of the day while other classes have been, within the last few years, slipping into the background—why no one can tell except that the decrees of fashion have so ordained it.

Apropos of auction sales, the London Times congratulates British book collectors on the fact that, while rich American collectors are outbidding all others for rare books in the auction rooms, yet every season's list of book sales in London contains a library from New York, Boston or some other American city. This, the writer in The Times admits, is not because book auctions in America are not well conducted; but the idea seems to be that Americans still regard London as the best market for rare books. American first editions and other "rarities" may not often sell well in England, but for such material as mentioned by Mr. Slater in the foregoing paragraph English and Continental markets are still decidedly the best in which to obtain fair prices.

The copyright measure has a fair chance of consideration in each house of Congress within a few days, being early on the calendar in the Senate and on the privileged calendar in the House. Both committees are likely to recommend some further changes, chiefly in the line of making clear provisions which have seemed doubtful or inadequate. The most important is in relation to copyright term, on which the recommendation will probably be for an alternative of life and thirty years or fifty years, whichever may prove the longer period, with a forty-two-year period for periodicals, collective and corporate works, etc. The serious difference between the majority of the Senate committee on the one side and the House committee, with the minority of the Senate committee, on the other side, in relation to the protection of musical authors is the most serious danger before the bill in this crowded short session, and this may prevent its passage.

DIME NOVELS IN GERMANY.

The "dime novel" is said to be ravaging Germany. According to Johannes Siebert, most German boys prefer an Indian story to any other book. Their hearts beat fast as they read the adventures of trappers and settlers, gaze with awe into wigwams, and hear the howls of the wolves. This interest began with the publication, in 1823, of "The Spy," by Cooper, followed soon by his other stories. These novels, however, did not seem quite suitable for boys, so they were bearbeitet, or edited for the young folks. Later, the adapters began to construct their own plots and incidents, out-Coopering their model in his most adventurous moods. The results, says Siebert, are terrible to contemplate. There are in Germany about 500 "Grosso" [wholesale publishing] firms, with 3000 travellers, to sell such books. An edition of 700,000 is not an unusual thing. They are adorned with glaring illustrations, and one may buy such a volume of perhaps 250 pages for about the price of the nickle libraries published in this country.

WORK OF HOSPITAL BOOK AND NEWSPAPER SOCIETY.

No less than 6062 books, 27,813 magazines, 37,797 weekly and illustrated papers and 218,621 daily and Sunday papers were distributed during the year ended September 30 by the Hospital Book and Newspaper Society, according to its thirty-second annual report, just issued. In all 300,647 pieces of reading matter have been handled, classified and properly distributed. The daily papers, collected from the boxes placed at railway and ferry stations, hotels and downtown street corners in New York City, are sent the same day to the institutions on Blackwell's and Ward's islands, where they help to brighten the lives of more than 30,000 people. The books and magazines that are sent out of New York City go to lonely lightship and frontier posts, to convict camps and mountain villages and remote schools, South and West, where they are received with warm gratitude.

Owing to the withdrawal by most of the express companies of free passes, many calls from long distances have recently had to be disregarded for lack of funds. The report says that $500 or $600 a year more would enable the society to reach many remote places which now appeal in vain. There also many requests for German, French and Italian books or papers—in fact, for reading matter in any language. Contributions of reading matter should be sent to the office, No. 105 East Twenty-second Street, Room 417; contributions of money to the treasurer, Mrs. J. O. Green, No. 13 Lexington Avenue.

METHODIST BOOK CONCERN TO MERGE FACTORIES.

Consolidation of the manufacturing departments of the Book Concern of the Methodist Episcopal Church is to be perfected at the sessions of the Book Committee, which began its annual meeting at No. 150 Fifth Avenue, New York City, on February 13.

It is recommended that a suitable structure for manufacturing purposes be erected elsewhere than at 150 Fifth Avenue, to which shall be transferred the work of manufacturing, distributing and accounting that is to be concentrated in New York.

This committee has general supervision over the publishing business of the church, which is one of the most extensive publishing businesses in the world.

In the report presented on the 13th inst. by Chancellor Day, of Syracuse, N. Y., who headed the committee which prepared it, the Book Committee is directed to carry the plan as agreed on into effect so far as may be practicable at once, and also in due time to formulate and present to the next General Conference, in 1908, such changes in the discipline of the church as may be required for the operation of the new general plan.

The change of name of the "Methodist Book Concern" to "The Publishing House of the Methodist Episcopal Church," as given in the general plan, will be determined by the General Conference.

Paragraph eight concentrates the publication of all periodicals, with the exception of the several Christian Advocates, at Cincinnati. Paragraph nine concentrates the publication of books at New York. Paragraph ten provides for the auditing of accounts. Paragraph eleven relates to the several Christian Advocates. The paper known simply as The Christian Advocate, which is published in New York, edited by Dr. J. M. Buckley, remains untouched, but it is recommended that the Western, the Northwestern and the Central be consolidated under the name of the Central Christian Advocate, to be published in Chicago.

McGRAW PUBLISHING CO.'S NEW QUARTERS.

The McGraw Publishing Company is putting up an eleven-story building in New York City, on the north side of Thirty-ninth Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenue, occupying a frontage of 126 feet and a depth of 90 feet.

The building has been designed with particular reference to the requirements of the firm's publishing business. The site is in the centre of the New York haunts of the engineering profession—the United Engineering Societies Building and the Engineers' Club being near. The McGraw Building is in the heart of the hotel district, and the new terminal of the Pennsylvania Railroad and the New York Central Terminal at Forty-second Street will offer postal facilities of great value to a publishing organization.

The main press-room will be in the basement, and the composing room, bindery and mailing room on the first and second floors. The book department of the company is to be located on the first floor and the editorial and business offices on one of the upper floors in the most advantageous position relative to the manufacturing department. There will thus be at least four floors devoted to the business of the McGraw Publishing Company. The remainder of the building will be rented for offices and loft purposes.

The McGraw Company publishes three weekly technical periodicals, the Electrical World, the Engineering Record and the Street Railway Journal, which are designed to cover the entire engineering field. Other periodicals are a "Central Station List and Buyers' Manual," published semi-annually; the "Electric Railway Directory," published three times a year, and the Electrochemical and Metallurgical Industry, published monthly. The company's list of books is an important one, and is growing steadily.

ART AND THE PRINTING PRESS.

"Art has to-day become peculiarly democratic through the agency of the printing press," says John Cotton Dana in The Printing Art for February. "Accuracy, delicacy and refinement may surely be taught by a beautiful page of print," and Mr. Dana's article is descriptive of the printing press as the medium of artistic expression, not only in words but in illustrations; not only in fine type and arrangement of heads and initials, but in etchings, engravings and lithographs.

Even the daily paper makes for the democratization of art in its carefully studied make-up, its balance of heavy and light fonts of type, its well-grouped illustrations. These last have great educational value, Mr. Dana thinks, as well as artistic merit.

In the weekly and monthly magazines the press gives us the work of many very able artists, which "can and do help many thousands to become, almost unbeknown to themselves, critical and appreciative of better things.

"If one doubts the power of print in art education he need only look at the character of the average of books to-day and compare it with the average of even twenty-five years ago to see how great progress has been made in this one product of the press. This progress, moreover, is due in large part to the demand of book-readers and book-buyers that their books be more beautiful. . . . Beauty in books is of a refined kind which does not jump to the eyes as it sometimes seems to in objects of other sorts. But many must have learned its secret, or publishers would not have put artists behind their presses to produce them."

The press is not helping all persons to a knowledge and appreciation of art, because, says Mr. Dana, "art is assumed to be confined to certain forms of expression, and the schools and the purists generally have encouraged the growth of the feeling that a printed page and a picture reproduced on a common printing press are not within art's high domain. Our backwardness in the decorative arts is doubtless in part due to this worship of paint and canvas."

THE DECAY OF ILLUSTRATION.

F. C. Tilney, who is an illustrator himself, has written a long letter in the Academy on "The Decay of Illustration." It is not, he thinks, as bad as it seems. He says that "the dozen or so of illustrators in the famous sixties can be more than matched to-day," but then he goes on to deplore the present market prices for work in this field, which he thinks are not high enough to tempt all the capable hands available, and he has other charges to bring against the publishers and editors. Process work makes it easy to reproduce almost anything. Magazines spring up in preposterous numbers, and since they must all be "fully illustrated," the feeblest drawings are accepted at the cheapest prices, merely to fill space. Immature students are employed because competent artists are considered too expensive. "All this," says the New York Tribune, "is very sad, and if it applies to the whole situation in England, our heart bleeds for the down-trodden British illustrator. But we wonder if Mr. Tilney is quite accurate in his presentation of the case. In this country, at all events, no illustrator worth his salt need complain of inability to earn a good living. In spite of the photograph and the half-tone his services are always in demand. In fact it is not uncommon, we believe, for the illustrator of an article or story to be paid more for his drawings than is paid to the author."

PRINTERS' LEAGUE OF AMERICA.

To establish peace between the printers of New York who employ union help and their employes who are members of Typographical Union No. 6 about fifty owners of New York printing establishments met on the evening of February 5, in the Union Square Hotel, and adopted by-laws and part of a constitution. The new organization will be known as the Printers' League of America.

The convention was called to order by Charles Francis, president of the league, who explained that he had received many messages from employing printers who were unable to be present, but who sent word that they would abide by any action taken by the convention. Mr. Francis declared that in the last big strike in New York City, which began in January, 1906, $8,000,000 had been spent by employers and employes.

In addition to its main object of avoiding strikes by conciliation and arbitration, it is the intention of the Printers' League to discard individual labor contracts and instead introduce the system of collective labor contracts. It will also seek to provide a plan of adjusting disputes under existing contracts through a court of arbitration.

Another meeting of the League will be called in March. Thus far, we understand, none of the larger and more important firms has expressed its intention of joining the movement.

WATCH OUT FOR CHECK SWINDLER.

A clever check swindler is abroad, and has already obtained books and cash from at least one bookseller in New York. The man is about fifty years of age, of medium height and weight, has iron grey hair and moustache and dark eyes. In one bookstore he selected several books which he desired held for instructions—they were eventually to be sent to his sister—and several other books he took away with him. In payment he offered a check for $24.75, drawn on the State Bank of Chicago, payable to N. B. Sears, signed "Barbee Wire and Iron Works, per G. R. Rix, Treas.," and obtained ten dollars cash in change. The swindler claims to be the expert accountant of the Barbee firm. Needless to say the check came back marked "N. G."

FOR THE KEATS-SHELLEY FUND.

An entertainment was given in the afternoon of the 14th inst. at the Waldorf-Astoria, in New York City, to aid the Keats-Shelley memorial in Rome. There were present in the audience Mrs. Grover Cleveland and representatives of the English and Italian Embassies. On the stage, the decorations of which were arranged by Carroll Beckwith, the artist, were Edmund Clarence Stedman, who presided; Mrs. Ruth McEnery Stuart, Miss Julia Marlowe, Miss Beatrice Herford, Mark Twain, the Rev. Dr. Henry Van Dyke, F. Hopkinson Smith and Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, all of whom took part in the exercises.

In his introductory remarks Mr. Stedman made special reference to Robert Underwood Johnson, secretary of the committee, who has made two journeys to Rome and done much hard work in the interest of the memorial.

Mark Twain read the "Memorabilia" ("Ah, did you once see Shelley Plain?") as a pendant to Shelley's ode "To a Skylark." Miss Julia Marlowe recited from Keats's "Ode on a Grecian Urn," preceded by the lyric "In a Drear-nighted December," and the sonnet "Fame, like a wayward girl." Mrs. Wellman sang a group of songs to Shelley's words, and also Browning's "The Year's at the Spring." Dr. S. Weir Mitchell and Henry Van Dyke read appropriate selections, and the humor was furnished by F. Hopkinson Smith, in a part of "Colonel Carter's Christmas," Miss Beatrice Herford in monologues, and Mrs. Ruth McEnery Stuart in plantation sketches.

The programmes, which sold at $1 each, had beautifully decorated covers in colors, and contained portraits of the two poets, a picture showing the Keats house in Rome, which is to be turned into a memorial building, and pictures of the graves of the poets in the Protestant cemetery in the same city, with facsimiles of manuscript, etc. As near as could be estimated, the reading added between two and three thousand dollars to the fund.

STATIONERS' BOARD OF TRADE ANNUAL DINNER.

About one hundred members of the Stationers' Board of Trade attended the annual dinner given on the evening of February 14 at the Waldorf-Astoria. Henry C. Bainbridge, the president, introduced the post-prandial portion of the evening's entertainment in a brief speech congratulating the Board on its good work in the past and urging co-operation in making the Board still more useful. Among the speakers were the Hon. George L. Record, Corporation Counsel of Jersey City, who spoke on "Modern Business Methods," dwelling particularly on the relations between wage-earners and employers, and the need of courts of arbitration. E. S. A. De Lima spoke at length on the Extension of Our Commerce, and Joseph A. Lawson, of Albany, a member of the legal fraternity, spoke pithily on the desirability of cultivating a more altruistic view of life.

THERE WAS NO LORD BACON.

Apropos of Dr. Karl Bleibtreu's new theory about the origin of Shakespeare's plays, a correspondent writes to the London Chronicle as follows: "When will the British public learn to call things (and men) by their correct names? There is no such person in history as 'Lord Bacon.' The great Elizabethan, who, by a few modern idiots, is accused of having written the plays, was by name Sir Francis Bacon, Baron Verulam, Viscount St. Albans. In no standard work of reference is he spoken of as 'Lord Bacon.'"

COMMUNICATIONS.

A VIRGINIA BOOKSELLER GIVES UP.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

Dear Sir: As it is a custom with you to note changes of any public character among the booksellers of the country, it occurred to me that you had better have the following information first hand.

After more than one-third of a century I have come to the reluctant decision that I cannot afford to remain longer in the book and stationery business, and after April 1 there will be no "Stanton's Old City Bookstore."

I will quit just about where I began, with my original investment intact and nothing to show for my long service but a family of four children cared for and educated and ready to take hold for themselves.

I believe I will drop out of the ranks with the best wishes and good will of all the trade with whom I have had business relations, and certainly there is no ill feeling on my side towards any individual or firm, though I may not feel any too kindly towards certain methods that have compelled the bookseller to do the work of distribution with too little or perhaps no compensation.

But let that pass, and allow me through these columns to bid a reluctant good-bye to the familiar names and faces that have, for so long, been a part of my every day life, and to my fellow retail bookseller I hope that the day of miracles is yet with us, and that he may perform one by making a great financial success of the book business.

Yours in auld lang syne,

Frank Stanton.

Wheeling, W. Va., January 23, 1907.

POPULAR ENGLISH FICTION.

According to the London Book Monthly the following fiction is most in demand in England:

The Far Horizon, by "Lucas Malet."
Sir Nigel, by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.
Prisoners, by Mary Cholmondeley.
The Call of the Blood, by Robert Hichens.
Sophy of Kravonia, by Anthony Hope.
Paul, by G. F. Benson.
The Beloved Vagabond, by W. J. Locke.
The Doctor of Crow's Nest, by Ralph Connor.

OBITUARY NOTES.

David Peck Rhoades, formerly president of the New York News Company, died on February 3, at his home at Stratford, Conn., aged eighty-three. About three weeks ago Mr. Rhoades slipped and fell, sustaining injuries that resulted in his death. Mr. Rhoades was born in Milford, Conn., in 1824. He came to New York City at an early age. As a boy he sold papers, and then obtained a position with a manufacturing jeweller in the same building in which the New Yorker was published by Horace Greeley. Shortly after, Greeley entrusted Rhoades with his mailing list, and when the New York Tribune was started in 1841 he was made circulation manager of that paper. In 1867 Mr. Rhoades left the Tribune to become president of the New York News Company, from which he retired in 1885 to be succeeded by his son, John W. Rhoades, who is now connected with the American News Company. His grandson, J. Howard Rhoades, several years ago became manager of the New York News Company, which thus for nearly half a century has been successfully conducted by three generations of one family.

SIR WILLIAM HOWARD RUSSELL, the famous war correspondent and since 1858 proprietor and editor of The Army and Navy Gazette, died on the 10th inst. in London. Had he lived until March 28 he would have been eighty-seven years old, having been born in Dublin in 1820. He served the London Times as war correspondent from the Crimean campaign in 1854 down to the Egyptian struggle in 1884. He may be said to have created the art of war correspondence. His power of vivid description was extraordinary and his conversance with military tactics was comprehensive, though the colorings of prejudice very often spoiled his brilliant pictures. This was, for example, the case with his account of the rout of the Union forces at the first battle of Bull Run, July 21, 1861, which, by the way, Dr. Russell, as he was then known, is said never to have witnessed. The description of the behavior and deportment of the Federal forces on that occasion which he sent to London was too much for the sensibilities of the Union leaders, galled as they were by the results of the battle. Dr. Russell left the United States not long thereafter, leaving the American forces North and South to finish their struggle unaided. The nickname of "Bull Run Russell," which was bestowed on him on account of this incident, was not applied either in affection or in admiration of his abilities as a war correspondent. However, he achieved world-wide reputation and was honored with many foreign decorations and orders and, finally, in 1895, he was created a knight. He published many books, among others "Letters from the Crimea," "The British Expedition to the Crimea," "My Diary North and South," in 1862 after he returned to England from the United States; "Canada, Its Defences," "Rifle Clubs and Volunteer Corps," "The Adventures of Dr. Brady," "My Diary in the East with the Prince of Wales" and "Hesperothen, or, Notes from the West."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE REV. DR. WATSON, better known as "Ian Maclaren," author of "Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush," etc., is in New York. He will lecture in this country before returning home.

MISS ALICE A. HOLMES, the blind poetess of Jersey City, N. J., quietly celebrated on February 9 at her home, 223 Warren Street, the eighty-sixth anniversary of her birth. Miss Holmes was born in Wind Farthing, County Norfolk, England, on February 9, 1821, and came to America at the age of eight. On the voyage over she was stricken with smallpox, and when she was discharged from the hospital it was found that her sight had been destroyed. At seventeen she was sent to the New York Institution for the Blind, where she spent seven years. Miss Fanny Crosby, the blind hymn writer, was attending the institution at that time and the young women were close friends. Miss Holmes did not aspire at that time to be a poet. "I idolized Fanny," she said, "and was very fond of her poetry, but it was not until I was about thirty that I began to write. I probably would not have had the courage to write for publication if it hadn't been for Jeanne L. Bruce, a Jersey City poet, who had quite a reputation in her day. She gave me much encouragement and, acting on her advice, I had many little things published." Miss Holmes has had four volumes of poems published and for a long time she supported herself by her pen.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

RICHARD G. BADGER has become the publisher of The Journal of Abnormal Psychology, of which Dr. Morton Prince is editor, with Professor Münsterberg, Dr. Putnam, Dr. Hoch, Dr. Boris Sidis, Dr. Dana and Dr. Meyer as his associates.

THE February issue of The Open Court among other interesting matter contains an informing article by David P. Abbott, entitled "Half Hours with Mediums," which explains some very clever tricks employed by professional mediums to dupe their audiences.

Ridgway's Magazine with its issue for February 9 has suspended publication. In a valedictory editorial Erman J. Ridgway says that experience proved the soundness of the ideas on which his national weekly was based, but the knockout blow came when he tried to carry out his plans on the mechanical side. The public would not put up with a poorly-printed paper, however lofty its purposes, however strong its intellectual equipment, and editions containing late local news in fourteen cities could not be printed on slow presses. Hence the production of the paper was impossible.

THOMAS WATSON, it is announced, is to establish a chain of newspapers through the South, with Thomas H. Tibbles, the Populist leader, as his managing editor and chief editorial writer. Mr. Tibbles, who has been editor of The Investigator in Omaha for the last year, resigned that position on the 9th inst. and will leave shortly for Atlanta, from which point the newspapers will be edited. At the head of the chain will be Watson's Jeffersonian Magazine and his Jeffersonian Weekly, now published in Atlanta. Newspapers will be issued in Atlanta, Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi, and later elsewhere. We presume Watson hopes to succeed where Ridgway failed.

THE inaugural number of the Journal of American History has just been issued by the Associated Publishers of American Records, Inc., in the form of a quarto volume of 192 pages. It purports to collect the "various phases of history, art, literature, science, industry, and such as pertains to the moral, intellectual and political uplift of the American nation," and to be a "testimonial of the marked individuality and strong character of the builders of the American republic." It certainly contains much information relating to the above-mentioned matters, and is embellished with reproductions of prints and works of art, seals, coats-of-arms and photographs, together with numerous illustrations in bright colors on tissue paper of the growth of the American flag. The publication is compiled in collaboration with the Connecticut Magazine, and is to be issued quarterly at two dollars a year, or fifty cents a single copy.

BUSINESS NOTES

MACON, GA.—The McEvoy Book and Stationery Company has been forced into involuntary bankruptcy.

NEW YORK CITY.—Francis P. Harper, the publisher and dealer in old books, will remove shortly before May 1 from 14 West Twenty-second Street to the Knabe Building at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-ninth Street. Mr. Harper's specialty has been in rare, curious and out-of-print books, early Americana and Rebellion literature, and he is among the leading experts in this line.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—The Caxton Book Room, 250 Butler Exchange, is the new location of J. H. McCahey, who for over a quarter of a century has been identified with the book and stationery trade of this city. The past sixteen years he was buyer for the Callender, McAuslan & Troup Co., and during the recent holidays he had the O'Gorman Co.'s book department under his care.

WHEELING, W. VA.—Thomas Perry, who for eighteen years was associated with Frank Stanton, (who announces his withdrawal from the book business in another column of this issue,) and Mr. Hassell, who for twelve years was in the employ of the Palace Furniture Company, have formed a partnership under the firm name of Perry & Hassell, and will open a book and stationery store at 39 Twelfth Street. They will open up at once with a full line of books and periodicals and stationery and office supplies. Both men are well thought of by a large number of friends and every one wishes them good luck.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

DUFFIELD & COMPANY announce that they will follow the recommendations of the American Publishers' Association with reference to continuing the net price system.

THE CENTURY COMPANY have postponed the publication of A. E. W. Mason's "Running Water," and Frederic C. Penfield's "East of the Suez," from February 27 to March 2.

AT a meeting of the officers and the Boost Committee of the New York Boost Club, held on the evening of the 8th inst., it was voted to reduce the dues of the club from $12 to $3 a year.

THE SAALFIELD PUBLISHING COMPANY have just ready "Norry, Diplomatic Agent," by George Bronson-Howard. The story follows a secret service agent through Panama, Russia, the Orient, and our own Southern States, and is full of surprises.

CHARLES MARCIL, member for Bonaventure County and vice-president of the House of Commons, has been invited to speak, in reply to the toast of "Canada," at the banquet which will follow the convention of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York City, on February 21.

THE FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have just ready "Where the Rainbow Touches the Ground," by John Henderson Miller. The story swings around a strong plot. The scene is laid in Missouri, and a cyclone which sweeps the region figures prominently in the book. Mr. Miller, who is a Missouri author of exceptional power, has drawn his sturdy fellow-Missourians in picturesque style, and the book brims over with homely philosophy.

THE Baltimore Sun claims the "Monumental City" to be the centre of the jokebook industry, and devotes nearly two columns of its issue for January 20 to prove its claim by describing the I. & M. Ottenheimer publishing house, which every year turns out this class of reading matter by the hundreds of thousands. The annual demand for each of a number of their jokebooks is sixty thousand. These books are handled exclusively by newsdealers and by trainboys.

A. S. BARNES & Co. have just brought out a volume entitled "The American Idea," by L. K. Commander, a remarkable compilation of the views of representative people all over the country concerning the number of children the normal American family should contain; also, "A Short History of Social England," by M. B. Synge, a sketch of the material conditions in which our English ancestors lived and died, by one of England's foremost historical writers. They will publish about the middle of March an interesting work on "The Nature and Origin of Life," by Professor Felix le Dantec, of the Faculty of Sciences at the Sorbonne, Paris, who presents this most vital subject in the light of recent revolutionary discoveries in science. The volume is the second in the New Knowledge Series.

ISAAC PITMAN & SONS, New York City, will publish on March 25 an entirely new adaptation of Isaac Pitman's shorthand to the Spanish language. In this text the principles of phonography have been closely adhered to, modifications being made only where the differences in the language to be represented rendered it absolutely necessary. The new work is written entirely in Spanish, and is complete in itself, so that the student who is acquainted with the Spanish language may readily learn Spanish shorthand without reference to any other text-book. The scheme of lessons in this work follows the plan developed in "Isaac Pitman's Short Course in Shorthand." Considerable attention has been devoted to the important matter of Spanish correspondence, and there are exercises in shorthand and in ordinary type sufficient to give the student a thorough drilling in the reading and writing of business communications.

THE OLIVER DITSON COMPANY, Boston, have added to their important series of masterpieces of song and piano music—The Musicians' Library—"Thirty Piano Compositions by Felix Mendelssohn." The compositions, edited by Percy Goetschius, have been selected chiefly with a view to presenting the composer's characteristics in the most striking manner; but they also include those of Mendelssohn's works which have become in the best sense popular. The object of the editor's revision has been accurate definition of the phrasing and notation, careful and systematic fingering, and a few general directions concerning interpretation and the use of the pedal. Daniel Gregory Mason has furnished a discerning essay on Mendelssohn's art and style, and there has also been included a bibliography including books and articles in books. The book has been carefully and handsomely printed at the Merrymount, a hall-mark of good work, and contains a fine portrait of Mendelssohn.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO. are to publish the series of books thus far produced in response to the annual prizes given by Hart, Schaffner & Marx, of Chicago, for the best "Essays in Economics." They are "The Causes, Extent, and Recent Indications of Progress in Germany," by Earl Dean Howard; "The Causes of the Panic of 1893," by William J. Lauck; "What Method of Education is Best Suited to Men Entering Trade or Commerce," by Harlow Stafford Person; "Federal Regulation of Railway Rates," by Albert N. Merritt; and "Should Ship Subsidies Be Offered by the Government of the United States," by Walter T. Dunmore. It will be remembered that the judges awarding these prizes were J. Lawrence Laughlin, J. B. Clarke, Henry C. Adams, Horace White and Carroll D. Wright, names bearing evidence that the munificent donors of the prizes not only were willing to encourage serious work, but were resolved that their gifts should go to the deserving. They have also in preparation Miss Mary Johnston's drama of the French Revolution, entitled "The Goddess of Reason."

A. C. MCCLURG & CO. will announce for publication during the fall of this year a uniform handy-volume edition of the great writers of fiction, in uniform typography at uniform prices. Dickens, Thackeray, Scott, George Eliot, etc., will be printed from entirely new plates and will appear under the general series heading of The Prairie Classics. Compactness, readability and serviceability will be the features of this edition. The volumes are to be 4½ x 7¼ inches in size, (the same as McClurg's well-known World's Best Series—The World's Greatest Short Stories;) the type used is the excellent "Scotch face" made by the Miller & Richard foundry at Edinburgh, and the paper is the famous English "Bible" paper, remarkable for the great number of pages that can be put into small bulk. In the matter of illustrations tradition will be set aside, and each volume will have a frontispiece in colors from the brush of George Alfred Williams, whose recent depictions of characters from Dickens have aroused considerable discussion for their original conception. These first ten titles will be followed during 1908 by another group, and the plan contemplates eventually completing each author.

HENRY HOLT & COMPANY will publish about the end of the month in conjunction with Chatto & Windus, of London, a remarkable biography of a fascinating woman, being "Julie De Lespinasse," by the Marquis de Segur, who, already favorably known as an author, has found a very able translator in P. H. Lee Warner. Julie excited widespread attention recently as the original of the heroine of Mrs. Ward's "Lady Rose's Daughter." The Marquis has discovered many new sources of information, and has cleared up the mystery hitherto regarded as insoluble, which on one side has hung over the origin of Mlle. de Lespinasse. He also completely refutes many of the calumnies by earlier biographers, and moreover presents for the first time the heroine's letters to her pupil and half brother, Abel de Vichy, letters which throw a pleasant light on her domesticity, family affection, love for children and shrewd commonsense. The only authentic portrait of Mlle. de Lespinasse will be reproduced as a frontispiece. They will follow up their recent volume of three plays by Racine with one of three by Corneille, being that author's "Le Cid," "Horace" and "Polyeucte," edited by Professor W. A. Nitze and Dr. S. L. Galpin, of Amherst College. The combination of these dramas gives an opportunity for a general introduction on the nature and rise of French drama, though there are also separate introductions to the three plays.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish at once "Poison Island," by A. T. Quiller-Couch, a thrilling tale of treasure-seeking, carried on by a band of the quaintest and most original characters, and described in a lively, humorous and absorbing way; "Studies in Pictures," by John C. Van Dyke, author of "Art for Art's Sake," etc., an introduction to the famous galleries, valuable to travellers and lovers of painting; also, "The Spanish Explorers in the Southern United States," a new volume in the series of Original Narratives of Early American History, which contains the narrative of Alvar Nuñez Cabeça de Vaca, the expedition of Coronado, by Pedro de Castañeda, and the expedition of de Soto by the Gentleman of Elvas. Later in the month they will bring out Edith Wharton's new story, "Madame de Treymes," in which an international marriage is analyzed in a keen and effective way; "The Veiled Lady and Other Men and Women," a new volume of stories by F. Hopkinson Smith, which gives in a characteristically amusing and enlivening way the adventures and experiences of a painter and man of the world in Venice, Stamboul and other places; the second volume of "The Book of Psalms," a critical and exegetical commentary by Dr. Charles A. Briggs, which contains the commentary on the remaining hundred Psalms, of the first volume of which competent authorities have declared that it has no superior; also, "Abélard and Heloise," a drama in four acts, by Ridgely Torrence. They also announce "The Life and Work of Auguste Rodin," by Frederick Lawton, with fifty illustrations, many of which have never appeared before in a book.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish shortly two books that have a direct bearing on the Jamestown tri-centennial to be celebrated in April. Mrs. Roger A. Pryor, the author of "Reminiscences of Peace and War," has told, in "The Birth of the Nation," of the beginnings of the Jamestown Colony. Supplementing this will be a superb edition of the "Travels of Captain John Smith," the most important single figure in the story of Jamestown's founding. Of more modern import among the Macmillan spring books is a new and thoroughly revised edition of General Henry L. Abbot's book, "Problems of the Panama Canal." The interests of country life are served by such books as "The Earth's Bounty," by Mrs. Kate V. Saint Maur; "A Book of Vegetables," by Allen French; "Three Acres and Liberty," by Bolton Hall; and a new edition of "Birdcraft," by Mabel Osgood Wright. In religion and philosophy their list is singularly up to date. Professor Alexander V. G. Allen discusses "Freedom in the Church;" Professor Shailer Mathews deals with "The Crisis of the Church;" Professor Joseph Alexander Leighton writes of "Jesus Christ and the Civilization of To-day;" Dr. James B. Pratt's subject is "The Psychology of Religious Belief;" Professor Walter Rauschenbusch is the author of "Christianity and the Social Crisis," and Professor Arthur Kenyon Rogers of "The Religious Conception of the World." Books of practical suggestion and teaching are "The Seeming Unreality of the Spiritual Life," by President Henry C. King; and "The Steps of Life," by Carl Hilty. For music lovers there is announcement of the third volume of Grove's "Dictionary of Music and Musicians;" while Professor Thomas Day Seymour's "Life in the Homeric Age," and "Life in Ancient Athens," by Professor T. G. Tucker, will interest students of the ancient world. A long list of scientific and technical works is headed by the "Cyclopedia of American Agriculture," edited by Professor L. H. Bailey, the first volume of which is to be issued next month. This work is to be completed in four volumes. Among other important books in this list are Professor Thomas Hunt Morgan's "Experimental Zoology," and "Economic Geology of the United States," by Heinrich Ries.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

☞ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties

SPECIAL NOTICE

CUPPLES & LEON CO. annonnces to the trade that it has made arrangements with E. P. DUTTON & COMPANY by which it has the exclusive right to reproduce the Dutton booklets known as the "Gem Series," certain copies of which have formerly been published by CUPPLES & LEON under the name "Eureka Art Series."

DUTTON & COMPANY having successfully defended in the Courts their claim to the exclusive right to publish these books, they will protect these rights and the rights they have given us against any one who copies said books, or in any other way infringes said rights.

Besides the eighteen titles that CUPPLES & LEON published last year, there has been added to their "Eureka Art Series" eight titles from Dutton's "Gem Series," and also ten titles of their own, making this "Eureka Art Series" of thirty-six especially selected titles the only authorized and legitimate line of these books on the market.

Orders should be placed early to ensure prompt delivery.

While our customers know the promptness and complete manner in which we filled our orders last year, our edition was exhausted so early that we were unable to fill re-orders.

For this reason we would advise that orders be placed early to ensure prompt delivery.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENTS

My Life as an Indian

By J. W. SCHULTZ

AN ANIMATED and vivid picture of Indian life—a study of human nature in red. It is the story, romantically told, of a red woman and a white man in the lodges of the Blackfeet, and will be one of the season's most steady sellers.

Illustrated. Net, $1.50. (Postage 15c.)

The Issue

By EDWARD NOBLE

The author of "The Edge of Circumstance" has here scored a new success in a most impressive novel of the mystery of "Fisherman's Gat."

The Academy says:

> "The sea is Mr. Noble's element. . . . It grips, and its grip is rough, as a sailor's grip may be." ($1.50)

Birds Every Child Should Know—The East

By NELTJE BLANCHAN, Author of "Bird Neighbors," etc.

Here is an ideal volume in the successful series of which "Poems," "Songs," "Fairy Tales," etc., have been adapted by libraries and school boards for supplementary reading. It is attractively illustrated by the foremost nature photographers in the country. Net, $1.20. (Postage 13 cents.)
